Looking Beyond the Trees

the Pacific Northwest states consider themselves in trouble. Some of their important spokesman have called for action by Washington to cut down the import of Canadian products. They say that Canadians have gained too large a share of the American domestic market and that United States producers need a tariff, or some other device, to keep the Canadians out.

This is the familiar protectionist plea of special interests. It is voiced without regard to the broader picture of Canadian-American trade in which Canada is running a colossal deficit.

But there are saner, reasonable, men in the Pacific Northwest American industry who understand the more complete trade picture and who reject the idea of a barrier raised against Canada.

Their case has been placed before the United States Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce by Mr. Harold H. Saltzman, spokesman for the Western Lumber Marketing Association with headquarters in Portland.

Mr. Saltzman makes no bones about the problems confronting American lumbermen in the Pacific Northwest. If they do not receive help, many of the smaller outfits will go under and the profit squeeze will seriously injure larger concerns, he says.

"There are some," he notes, "who claim that the best solution to our problems in lumber is to thereby raising American prices to such levels that everybody, hypo-thetically, would make a larger profit. These anti-Canada advocates forget that timber prices would soar disproportionately higher, offsetting any possible profit increase. Therefore, we do not believe this approach to be practical."

Mr. Saltzman raises some pertinent questions for his fellow Americans who urge restriction of incoming Canadian lumber and higher tariffs against it. "Is this approach practical . . . in view of Canada being the United States' number one export customer?" he asks.

Great Gains for the U.S. Negro

LATE LAST YEAR INTERESTS L in Panama wanted the United States to give the country 20 per cent of the gross revenues for ships passing through the Canal, with a minimum of $5,000,000 a year, and substantial "fringe benefits."

needs it badly. President Chiari's administration is running in the red and sees little prospect of raising enough money domestically. The country has virtually no industry and draws much of its sustenance from the geography which placed the Canal within its borders.

But while the plea is made for more American dollars, a peculiar condition arises. # Advances in Surgery

I recently had a most interesting ex-perience in Houston, Texas, where I spoke before a big and kindly audience. Each morning, I would go to the big Methodist Hospital with my kind and dis-tinguished friend, Chief of Surgical Staff, Dr. H. J Ehlers. There I would make rounds with either Dr. Michael DeBakey or Denton Cooley, two extremely able surgeons, who are making history by operating on the diseased arteries of hun.

dreds of people who come to see them from all over America and Europe.

One morning, I watched Dr. DeBakey nove a man's whole thoracic aorta, the big artery, as thick as a thumb, which comes out of the top of the heart and runs down through the chest as far as the midriff. He removed this particular artery because it had a big aneurysm in it—a blow-out such as can form on an automobile tire. In the old days, all that doctors and the unhappy pa-tient could do was to wait until the aneurysm ruptured and the man died. While Dr. DeBakey was removing the diseased aorta, and substituting a tube made of Dacron, the patient was being kept alive with the help of a pump which took the place

As I made rounds with the two great surgeons, I saw dozens of older people who had had aneurysms cut out, or had had an obstruction removed from an artery which normally carried blood to the brain, or had had an obstruction removed from one of the arteries that supplies a leg. As a result of the improved blood supply, to the brain, many persons regained their health after a series of strange little strokes. As a result of an improved blood supply to a kidney, many a person who has had a big high blood pressure has greatly improved (not all have this type of trouble); and, as a result of throwing more blood into a leg, many a man is walking comfortably again, and is no longer faced by the danger of losing some

As I made rounds in the big Children's Hospital with Dr. Cooley, I found dozens of little children and even new-born infants who had come into this world with a malformed heart. Many were what is called "blue babies" because much of the blood was not being sent, as it should normally be sent it prough the lungs where it combines be sent, through the lungs where it combines with the oxygen in the air and turns red.

Until a few years ago, hundreds of thousands of these children had no chance to live or to live with any comfort. Today, most of them are being cured. I saw dozens of people who had managed to live into adult life with a malformed heart, but when they were about at the end of their rope, they had to be operated on. Often, then, the surgeon had to close a hole between the two main cavities of the heart—a hole that should not have been there. With a successful opera-tion, the person was well.

A number of new technics have been worked out which enable the heart specialist of today to say exactly what is wrong with a malformed heart, and can say what the surgeon will have to do when he operates.

I watched Dr. Cooley make a beautiful arteriogram (x-ray picture of arteries) by injecting a substance into an artery which made every detail of it and its branches visible in a picture. I also saw men making a study of the circulation of the blood, running through the heart. This new technic should prove to be very valuable if it can take all of the guesswork out of estimating the blood-carrying capacity of the "coron-ary" or main arteries of the heart—the ones that plug up in the cases of bad "heart attacks."

I came away from Houston with a heart full of gratitude that, today, more and more surgeons with great courage, great skill and great physical stamina are working on the technics of performing these wonderful operations. I am glad that, today, in every big medical centre, surgeons are doing this

A foretaste of this is to be had at an exhibition which is on at the moment in London—staged by the Federation of German Agricultural Export Industries. Featured prominently there are samples of the beverage that is close to Britishers' hearts—beer.

PLATE DAY SPENDING SETS NEW RACE MARKS

TORONTO (CP) — Flaming Page and Choperion teamed up Saturday to give E. P. Taylor a one-two finish in that order in the 103rd running of the Queen's Plate before Queen Mother Elizabeth and a sun-splashed free-spending mob who set Canadian racing attenda and betting records.

It was the Toronto multi-millionaire's seventh victory It was the Toronto multi-millionaire's seventh victory in the last 14 Plate runnings and, by taking the front ends of the gross $76,225 purse, he made the greatest one-race haul by an owner in Canada. The 61-year-old industrialist-sportsman pocketed $63,725 and the Queen's gift of 50 guineas plus a $5,000 gold cup for his well-stocked Windfields Farm trophy room.

Attendance of 32,139 was nearly 4,000 better than the previous mark of 28,386 set June 7, 1958. The bettors wagered $1,228,590 on the eight-race card, up nearly $100,000 over the previous Canadian mark of $1,136,175 set on Plate day a year ago.

Edward Plunkett Taylor.

Ebullient, red-faced "E.P.," who needs money like most people need three heads, added $63,725 to his personal privy here Saturday. Two of his most youthful employees, Flaming Page, a filly, and Choperion, a colt, earned their salt and more by finishing one-two in the 103rd running of Capada's richest and oldest race, the Queen's Plate.

That kind of pin money should be enough to keep a fellow happy but this was a day Mr. Taylor's cup runneth over. Despite blazing sun and temperature in the high 80s, a record crowd of 32,169 poured into this gambling den which E.P. built six years ago. They wagered a record $1,228,590 (more than the 16-day handle at Sandown) and vheeled a fantastic $252,290 through the m

The Plate itself was the hypo for this mad exercise in-investment, but if extra stimulus was needed at the turnstiles the presence of the Queen Mother provided it.

A Setting DeMille Couldn't Match

Not since 1939, when she accompanied her late husband, King George V, had the Queen Mother been in the winner's circle to hand over the traditional Plate Cup and the 50 guineas to the winning owner. But Torontonians hadn't forgotten this lovely lady and they showed it when her motorcade arrived at 4.08 p.m.

The crowd hushed when announcer Daryl Wells in ed: "The Queen Mother has arrived." Racing forms were set aside and you could have heard a $2 ticket fall as she stepped unaided into the open-state landau with Keiller MacKay, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

Cecil B. DeMille would have wept at the splendid sight of the mounted Governor-General's Horse Guards, silver helmets glistening in the sun, slowly leading the royal en-heimets glistening in the sun, slowly leading the royal entourage around the track.

When she stepped out on a red carpet at the finish line to be met by Mr. Taylor, resplendent in grey topper and matching long coat, the respectful silence gave way to a crescendo of clapping and cheers. Dolls in black toreador pants and off-shoulder blouses and working stiffs in jeans and T-shirts worked their palms briskly as did the clawhammer and mink set in giving the Queen Mother a royal and sincere welcome. and sincere welcome

CONFLICT OF INTERESTS.

TWO TREES Safe, $1,000 Bid Made To Break Into Bank

Agile burglars broke into Spencer's War Surplus Store, 1012 Government Street, in the early hours of Sunday morning and walked off with a safe containing more than $1,000 in cash and cheques.

The safe was later found at East Sooke with its bottom chopped out and minus the contents.

While in the surplus store the thieves attempted to hack their way into the main branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce next door. Police were alerted at 8 a.m.

Sunday after a passerby no-ticed the store door open.

CLIMBED FIRE ESCAPE

They found the culprits had entered by climbing a fire es-cape at the rear of the bank next door, walked over the roof, used a plank to slide down into a well at the rear of the store, and forced open a rear window.

"You'd have to be part monkey to get in that window," a store official said.

Once inside they "made use of our facilities" to try and get into the bank, he said. HACKED HOLE

They set up a scaffold against the wall in the lower part of the store and used hack "a fair sized hole" in the wall. "But they must have got fed up with this and decided to take our safe instead," said the official. They pulled the 32-inch high cabinet to the front door; one of them went back outside to the door open, loaded it up and drove off.

"JUST MOVING" It is understood a woman told police that she saw some taking something from the store at about 3 Sun-day morning but she thought they were "just moving" and didn't tell police at the time.

The safe contained about $950 in cash and about $100

Alcatraz Fugitives Believed Drowned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-A floating plastic bag full of names and addresses has convinced the director of the federal bureau of prisons that three missing Alcatraz convicts drowned in their carefully planned try for freedom.

But the FBI isn't stopping its search for the trio of bank robbers until it finds a body. The San Francisco Chronicle reported Sun-day that the coast guard found the bag bobbing in San Francisco Bay near the island prison.

It contained the list of persons the missing men evidently intended to get in touch with, said prisons director James Bennett in Washington.

LONDON (AP)-The story of the Garden of Eden has been cut from a newly - published scientific version of the Bible because "the whole idea of Adam and Eve won't fit in with evolution."

The new interpretation was published by Dr. Brian Pamplin, a Durham University scientist and active member of the Church of England.

He said his aim was to pro-vide a scientifically accurate account of the creation which did not, in essence, challenge the Book of Genesis. Pamplin's version starts

He said the man was wounded by rifle fire and either was taken or walked to the prison hospital where he died.

He was identified as William Alder, 41, of Montreal, who began Dec. 21, 1959, serving a seven-year sentence for breaking and entering with intent.

dian Press Staff Writer After plowing through most of the week in dismal fashion, the stock market staged a dramatic turnabout late Friday, providing the only concrete bit of enthusiasm seen in all five sessions.

By Friday morning, industrials had gone through a steady erosion of prices. The section's index—a cross section compiled from 20 key issues - had slumped almost 23 points.

The drop continued until mid-afternoon Friday when industrials touched an index level of 536.67 their lowest point since Then came the unexpected surge. Orders to buy flooded the trading floor; in little more than an hour, industrials had climbed 10 index points from their low. They closed the day with a gain of more than eigh points on the week.

While the main list was drop-ping early in the week, golds gained strength. At mid-day Tuesday, they had struck their highest index level in more than 12 years—102.34. However, as the week progressed, their lustre waned. The index closed at 96.06 for a two-point rise.

Banks were among the weak-est in the industrial groups. Police were alerted at 8 a.m.

Sunday after a passerby no-ticed the store door open. CLIMBED FIRE ESCAPE

They found the culprits had entered by climbing a fire escape at the rear of the bank next door, walked over the roof, used a plank to slide down into a well at the rear of the store, and forced open a rear window.

They set up a scaffold gainst the wall in the lower part of the store and used axes and other instruments to hack "a fair sized hole" in the wall.

They pulled the 32 inch high cabinet to the front door; one of them went back outside to force the door open, loaded it up and drove off.
